Value States will hold the island for two years and then turn it over to the Cubean, but those in favor of annexation, who claim that if a proper vote was taken of all the Interests in the Island they would be in a large majority, think the United States will hold Cube for the next five of ten years and then let the island they would be found, the fire was drawn from the found. The content of the Island they would be found, the fire was drawn from the found. The content is a large majority of five to one in favor of Cube being a State in the Inform.

On the other band, Americans and for seigners here are in favor of giving as far as possible to intelligent Cubans the minor offices connected with the government, to tokech them by degrees the art of governing, of which they seem to have no know ledge. They think that by this means the people will appreciate the fact that it is Cube for the Cubans, and that when in a few years from now a vote is taken as to the future of the Island, American institutions and American energy will so thoroughly have become engrafted on the people that they will in atturnity profer to be come a part of the wrone which on the slightest signs of exterior trouble would have to appeal to, its big neighbor for assistance.
